The building suddenly collapsed and the score of men who were caught in the crash have not been reached.

The dead: August Thierry, first assistant chief; Michael Kehoe, assistant foreman of company No. 13; Daniel Steele, foreman of No. 12 company; William Dundon and Charles Krenning, pipemen; Patrick Bergen, assistant foreman; three pipemen, names unknown.

The building in which the fire originated was located in the old business section of the city and was about fifty years old. Pipemen at work on the second floor had difficulty in managing a line of hose and Assistant Chief Thierry was on his way with three of his men to lend them aid when the building collapsed. The men went down with tons of twisted iron, brick, stone and wooden columns enveloping them.

At 2 o'clock this morning not one of the unfortunate men had been reached.

Mayor Rolla Wells arrived on the scene at 12:30 o'clock and at once impressed all the stevedores, longshoremen and others in the neighborhood into service in the work of uncovering the bodies.

MID-WINTER MEETING OF GRANGERS; HOW TO KEEP GIRLS ON THE FARM

Large Army of Badger Agriculturists, Horticulturists, Stock-Breeders and Bee-Keepers Are in Annual Convention at Madison Today.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 5.—One hundred and twenty-five of the leading horticulturists of the state are attending the mid-winter meeting of the Wisconsin Horticultural society, which began a three-day session in the capital yesterday. President T. E. Looper of Eureka is presiding. President Looper delivered his annual address. It dealt principally with the growth in membership and the good work accomplished by the society during the past year. The president believed that horticulture in Wisconsin was on the verge of a prosperous era.

The feature of the afternoon session was a paper on "Transplanting the Apple in the Northwest," by A. W. Latham of Minneapolis, secretary of the Minnesota State Horticultural society. Other papers read during the afternoon were: "How to Care for the Orchard," by Edwin Nye of Appleton; "Cover Crops for the Orchard," by M. S. Kellogg, of Janesville; "Variation of Fruits in Changed Environments," by Oliver Gibbs of Prescott.

How to Keep Girls on the Farm
There was a large attendance at the evening session. The feature was a paper on "How to Keep the Girls on the Farm," by Mrs. Franklin Johnson of Daraboo. "It was impossible to keep the noblest and brightest boys on the farm," she said, "unless the wisestest girls could be trained to be contented and happy as mistresses in farm homes." In order to get some light on her subject Mrs. Johnson wrote to a number of girls asking them for suggestions. She found that the two greatest objections to farm life were due to its isolation and drudgery.

Better methods of education and improved methods of communication would, she believed, brighten and lighten the life of the girl on the farm. Some of the responses Mrs. Johnson received to her letters were exceedingly interesting and some were amusing.

PRESIDENT MAY CENSURE SCHLEY; WILL SUSTAIN THE NAVAL COURT

Roosevelt is Said to Have Made Up His Mind on the Appealed Verdict--It Will Be Adverse to the Admiral.

New York, Feb. 15.—President Roosevelt will announce in a few days his decision in the Schley case, and it will be highly unsatisfactory to Rear Admiral Schley, says a Washington dispatch to the Herald. It will emphatically declare:

That Rear Admiral Sampson was technically and actually in command of the American forces which destroyed the Spanish squadron off Santiago de Cuba.

That the battle was fought in accordance with the plan prepared and adopted by Rear Admiral Sampson.

That Rear Admiral Schley and the Brooklyn acted in accordance with the plan until the Brooklyn made her famous loop, which left an opening in the blockade line through which the Spanish fleet steamed.

That both Rear Admiral Sampson and Rear Admiral Schley hoisted signals at the beginning of the battle which were not observed, or, if observed, were not obeyed, as the captains of the ships were acting in accordance with the plan determined upon before the battle.

That during the chase of the Colon Rear Admiral Schley was technically in command of the left wing of the American squadron, but hoisted no signals and gave no orders which in the slightest degree influenced the operation of any ship save the Brooklyn.

President Roosevelt will also approve the unanimous findings of the court, though he may differ on one or two minor points. In announcing this decision the President will absolutely support the position taken by Secretary Long, and will show the country that notwithstanding the ovation given to Rear Admiral Schley by the people of the West and South he does not propose to flinch from what he regards as his plain duty.

MISS ALICE WILL SEE CORONATION

President Roosevelt Will Allow His Daughter To Attend the Ceremony "Inofficially."

Washington, Feb. 5.—Miss Alice Roosevelt will receive a unique birthday present from her father when she comes of age next Tuesday. It will not consist of jewels or costly gowns but will be what she will find far more to her liking—the president's consent for her to accompany her uncle and aunt to King Edward's coronation.

Commander and Mrs. Cowles, who is President Roosevelt's sister, will attend the coronation. Commander Cowles will be attached to the staff of Captain Clark, who is to be the naval ambassador on that occasion. Miss Roosevelt will be his guest.

By this arrangement, it has been figured out, the president's daughter can attend the coronation inofficially, or, in other words, as a mere spectator. If she went as the guest of Whitelaw Reid, recently appointed special ambassador, she would in a measure become an official guest of the British government.

WHITEHEAD AT A Y. M. C. A. BANQUET

Janesville Man Speaks at a Notable and Pleading Affair at Waukesha Last Night

Waukesha, Wis., Feb. 5.—The second annual banquet given last evening by the local Y. M. C. A. proved a notable and very pleasing affair. The association was honored by a number of visitors from abroad, among them being D. M. Sinclair and General Secretary and C. B. Willis of Milwaukee.

The closing speech was by Senator John M. Whitehead of Janesville, who spoke of the attitude of men of affairs to the Y. M. C. A. In the course of his remarks he touched upon things that successful men like Carnegie and others who have come up from the ranks do when they have once attained wealth and success. He said these works were but the expression of the real purpose that have grown up with them and they were certain to make themselves apparent when the opportunity came. The senator referred especially to the attitude of the railway managements toward the Christian association and said they favored it because they realized it was to their material advantage to do so. It made for them better employees and more capable assistants.

HOW THEY LIVE IN CHINATOWN

Mrs. Brand Investigates That Wicked Section of San Francisco.

"HITTING THE PIPE"

Their Meat Market, Drug-stores, and a Trip to the Chinese Theatre.

DEN LODGING HOUSES

San Francisco, Cal., Feb. 1.—Chinatown may be visited any time from six o'clock in the morning till nearly midnight and it will be found a place of bustle for the Chinese's busy day is from sixteen to eighteen hours long. The best time however and the one generally chosen by tourists, is at night, when the spectacle is most interesting. The section of the city known as Chinatown is right in the heart of the city, covering an area of twelve blocks and bounded by California, Stockton, Broadway and Kearny Streets.

Within this small area upwards of 30,000 yellow skinned people of humanity live their self-centered lives, hating the American but deriving as much of their support as possible from them, buying nothing in this country that they can either import from across the sea or get along with out, yet finding a ready market for all their goods.

Must Have a Guide.
The only way to really see Chinatown is with a guide who knows them and their ways, speaks their language and has access to the hovels which are home to them. Parties are made up from different hotels almost nightly and by leaving your name with the clerk in the day arrangements can be made for the same evening.

The parties are always small and the one with which we went included only another married couple and the guide beside ourselves. The guide was a middle aged man who addressed both gentlemen of the party indiscriminately as colonel. He was an entertaining talker and seemed to be at the best of terms with the Chinese.

First we went down Fish Alley where most of the markets are. The streets are all lighted with great Chinese lanterns and a few incandescent lights in front of the stores so, that while the method of illuminating is picturesque, the result is not particularly brilliant.

Chinese Meat Market

To me no place was more interesting than the Chinese meat market. The unwillingness to patronize American industries is very noticeable here. No twine or cord is used in tying up bundles, but instead a stout grass shipped over from China. It comes in very long pieces and is very hard to break. A great deal of poultry is on sale for, the Chinese are especially fond of chickens and allow no part of a fowl to go to waste. Every drop of blood is saved religiously and used in soup, if I remember correctly. Even the feet claws and all are cleaned, prepared in some way and sold as a great delicacy, though how they are eaten is a mystery to me.

They are bound compactly and look very queer, but for oddity, nothing quite equals the pressed ducks and chickens which are imported from the old country. True to their nature they are very fond of anything which come from China and a dried oriental duck is a greater luxury than a fresh American one.

These dried ducks are peculiar looking things. Head and feet are left on and the entire bird is pressed out thin and flat. In places it looks like parchment and it is a sorry outlook for dinner to American eyes, but the eye of the heathen Chinese glazes over it with the joy unspeakable of delightful anticipation.

Another delicacy which looks anything but appetizing is dried oysters, the hard little circles being strung at intervals of about half an inch on small wooden hoops. Pork sausages are also a favorite dish with the Chinese. They are made about the size of a man's finger, each one being separate and have no covering. Instead of being finely minced, the dark and light meat seems to alternate. In fatted large chunks and exposure to the air turns the meat dark and dry looking.

Ordinary cuts of meat, such as pork and beef, are sold much cheaper than by American butchers and many a white housewife buys her steaks and roasts of Ah Sin and soothes her conscience, if she has any on the subject, with the money which she saves.

Other Shops and Stores
Other shops and stores are perhaps equally interesting. The buildings are generally two stories high and are old American stores and houses, the interiors of which have been removed to meet Chinese requirements. The shops are generally quite small.

The Chinese manufacture all of their own goods and generally compete with American manufacturers by making American shoes, tin ware, and everything American that they possibly can. Especially fine work is done in the jewelry shops where all the work is done by hand. Only the most primitive implements are used by the workmen. The gold is melted over a flame made from imported nut

THE BRAVEST OF MEN

MICHAEL NEY, THE HUSSAR WHO BECAME A MARSHAL.

Career of a French Soldier in the ranks—Battle of Waterloo—Never Failed—Napoleon's Loyal Praetor—Shot to Death at Last.

(Copyright, 1901, by G. L. Kilmer.)

Met the indomitable veteran with the words: "What a man! What a soldier!" But the army was still on Russian soil. Ney's corps had melted away, but in every town there were French soldiers who had dropped out of the column for rest. Ney rallied them and fought off the Cossack pursuers. At Wilna, the last town on the frontier, he gathered several hundred, and these were soon reduced by battle and desertion to 30 men. Taking a musket in hand, Ney stood with them at the gate until left alone. Then he marched backward through the street with his face to the foe and crossed the Nieman on to German soil. Struggling to the house of a French physician, he found there General Dumas, who had been left behind by Napoleon to the care of his countryman. Dumas didn't recognize the blackened, long-haired stranger who accosted him familiarly. "What!" exclaimed Ney, "do you not know me?" The other replied, "No; who are you?" "The rear guard of the grand army, Marshal Ney. I fired the last shot on the bridge of Kovno. I have thrown the last of our muskets into the Nieman and have walked, as you see me, across the forests deep in snow."

When Napoleon was a prisoner at Elba, Ney lived a recluse on his country estate. Suddenly he was ordered by the crown to join his military division. Napoleon had escaped and sent an appeal to his old hero to draw his sword for the restoration of the empire. Ney was deaf to the call until his soldiers deserted the king. Then he went over, and Napoleon placed his fate in the hands of the one soldier who had never failed him.

At Waterloo, after fighting desperately all day and watching in vain for the coming of Grouchy off on the British left, Napoleon sent in the guard for a last charge to save his crown. Ney was given the column which was to strike the English under Wellington in person. The other column melted under the first fire. Then Napoleon harangued the veterans, telling them that the fate of the old army rested upon their valor. Ney ordered the charge and rode down the slope at the head of the line. It was another Pickett's charge in circumstance and import. The guard marched down into the valley, the British holding their fire, and their breaths, too, for that matter. But when the French began to climb the heights the guns again burst forth. Still, Ney forged ahead through the pitiless storm of shots. Five times the hero was unhorsed, and at last he strode on afoot, leading the guards up to the English guns and through them into the ranks of Wellington's reserves; but, as at Gettysburg, there was a regiment lying out of the path on the flank of the charging column. Whether or not the men heard Wellington's order, "Up and at them!" they got up and went at the French with the best they had in their pouches, and the Old Guard died out of the annals of war if it did not actually go down in carnage. Some turned face to meet the new danger, and through the intervals the British cavalry rode, completing the rout of Napoleon's last hope. Ney formed squares and fought on while the day lasted, but the retreating mass, thrown into a wild panic by the collapse of the guard, carried him along to disgrace and death. Napoleon's career was ended. No power could save Ney.

By a treaty with Wellington it was stipulated that no person should be molested for "political conduct or opinions during the hundred days." On those conditions Paris surrendered, but Ney was tried for treason, found guilty and publicly shot.

Ney was aroused from a deep sleep to hear his sentence. When the officer of the court began to enunciate his titles, "marshal," "duke" and so on, he interrupted him, saying, "Why can't you call me simply Michael Ney, now a French soldier, soon a heap of dust?" Before going to the execution ground the condemned man embraced his wife and children; then, with his

Napoleon appreciated Ney and often risked his army and his throne in the keeping of the ex-hussar. The marshal often differed with the emperor as to the policy of battles, campaigns and conquests, but where Ney struck Napoleon knew victory was as good as gained if the thing were possible. At Bautzen he sent Ney in the night to get into position for early attack. The guns opened before breakfast, and Napoleon sent off a message to the emperor saying the victory was won. Often Napoleon kept Ney close to him during battle until a crisis came. Then he would send him to lead his corps in at the danger point.

Ney commanded the rear guard on the retreat from Moscow. It was a terrible march, and thousands died from cold and hunger. More than that, the Russians were on the heels of the retreating French, and Ney's corps had to fight for the road. When his 40,000 had been reduced by battle and famine to 1,500 he found himself headed off by Cossacks. The main French army was within reach, and Ney sent messengers for help. Eugene Beaumont claimed the honor of going to the aid of Ney, and with 4,000 troops waded the deep snows and, by firing cannon, drew the sad procession to his camp. When Napoleon heard of the incident he said, "I have three hundred millions in my coffers at the Tuilleries and would willingly have given them to save Marshal Ney." Going to Ney's bivouac he

FIRE POLICE HAVE AN INSPECTION

An Elegant Dinner Served, Which Was Followed by Some Pertinent Speeches.

The annual inspection of the Janesville Fire Police was held last evening at the residence of Dr. William H. Palmer. Mayor Richardson and the members of the board of fire and police commissioners and a few invited friends joined with the company at the inspection.

Chief Spencer and Assistant Chief Osgood were worn out with their long battle with the fires and sent their regrets.

An elegant dinner was served those present at 6:30 o'clock. The dining room had been handsomely decorated and seven tables each seating four persons were arranged to accommodate the guests. At each plate a name card had been placed which also had a drive at the occupant of the seat.

The menu cards were artistic creations each article on the list being given a fire term for a name. The wants of the diners were attended to by Mrs. Palmer, assisted by Mesdames Mount, Sayles and Sutherland and Miss Elizabeth Palmer. At the social session following the banquet W. S. Jeffris recited an original poem on the happenings of the fire police, the police board and the men during their term of service. The poem handled them from a humorous standpoint and created great merriment.

Dr. Joe Whiting followed Mr. Jeffris with a paper on "The First Aids in Emergencies." The paper was well written and well delivered. It told what was the first thing to be done in special cases when the company was out on ambulance work.

The topic for the next month was assigned to F. S. Sheldon, who will prepare a paper on it. What it will be is a secret. After an hour of social conversation in which the half-breath escapes of some of the members cut considerable figure the party broke up. All were pleased with their evening's entertainment.

WEATHER FORECAST.
 Threatening tonight, Thursday probably snow; warmer.

THE POSTAL TELEGRAPH

The Postal Telegraph Company is the only company ever organized which managed to long exist, in competition with the Western Union which for many years controlled the telegraph business of the country.

The "Postal" owes its existence and success to the fact that it has not only refused to be absorbed, but it has possessed the money and enterprise to establish and maintain efficient service, and has rapidly developed as a competing company.

In February, 1890, President McKinley urged, by special message to congress, the laying of a Pacific cable to the Philippine Islands, by way of Hawaii. Congress realized the importance of the measure, but could not agree on an appropriation, and finally compromised by voting a subsidy of $300,000 per year to be paid by the government for 20 years, to any private company who would accomplish the undertaking.

Nothing further was heard of the matter, until August, 1901, when John W. Mackay, manager of the Postal Cable Company, sent to Hon. John Hay, secretary of state, a proposition to lay a cable from San Francisco to the Philippines by the way of the Hawaiian Islands, without government aid or subsidy, simply asking for the privilege of landing at terminal and intermediate points, under government protection. Rates were to be reduced from $2.36 to $1.00 per word, government messages to be given preference, and the government also given permission to purchase at appraised valuation, any time after completion.

This liberal proposition cleared the atmosphere and the Postal Cable Company is now engaged in the work, which includes 8,000 miles of cable and an outlay of $12,000,000.

Strange as it may appear, there is now pending five bills, two in the senate and three in the house, asking congress for an appropriation, to construct a competing line to be constructed and maintained at government expense. It should require about three minutes to dispose of this class of legislation.

While government utilities may be deemed desirable by some people, there is much to be said in opposition and the people have no desire to experiment with a cable, that is not needed, for either public or private use. The Western Union Company is accused of being behind the scheme and if there is any truth in the assertion, it is another very good reason why the bills should be tabled as soon as presented. It is yet to be discovered that the old company is engaged in business for either health or glory. The country is large enough for competing lines, and inasmuch as the Postal is not asking anything in the way of concessions, the government would be engaged in small business, by entering the field as a competitor.

The Western Union is abundantly able to take care of itself. If there is any money in another Pacific line the company is well able to build it. The government can afford to let well enough alone.

CONFIDENCE

It is generally conceded that confidence is the basis of credit and constitutes a large part of the business world's working capital. The panic of 1893, was caused, not by a shortage of money, but by lack of confidence. Hundreds of millions of dollars were retired from circulation and hidden away in vaults and stockpiles, not because it was not in demand, nor because people were not as honest as they were before, but because confidence in ability to perform, was shaken.

During the past two years the business of the country has so far surpassed all records, that conditions have been abnormal. Confidence has not only been restored, but the volume of this class of capital has been so abundant that it has been imposed upon and abused. Men with all sorts of visionary schemes for making money, have found no trouble in securing an enthusiastic following, and millions of dollars have been invested and lost, simply through over confidence.

This era of wild speculation exhausted itself last year, and legitimate stocks that were more or less affected by it settled back to a more conservative basis. During the month of January last past, conservative advices from Wall street, have suggested caution, intimating that values had reached high water mark, and while a panic would not necessarily follow that shrinkage and depression might result. These advices had a tendency to weaken confidence, and markets were becoming a little demoralized, when it occurred to some one to talk matters over with J. Pierpont Morgan and obtain his views of the situation and outlook. Mr. Morgan is a busy as well as a wealthy man. He has more money invested in various enterprises, both commercial and industrial than any half dozen men in the country.

He wasted no time in expressing himself freely and emphatically, saying in substance, that the times were the best today, that the country had ever experienced, and that they would continue to be good throughout the year. He based his opinion on the fact that many large American manufacturers were loaded with orders that would keep them busy for a year, and that transportation companies were unable to handle the goods forced on them.

Mr. Morgan practices his belief so far as his own investments are concerned and is not retreating.

His statement and actions have restored confidence and Wall street gives evidence of continued prosperity. One man like Morgan is worth more to the financial and business world than all the knockers, with the bank of England thrown in. His confidence inspires confidence and that is capital for the masses.

PRELIMINARY WORK

The preliminary work of the campaign so far as the Whitehead petitions are concerned, is practically closed. Results have been very satisfactory and the wide spread sentiment expressed is a flattering endorsement for the Janesville senator. The opposition developed, was uncalculated for and will not effect results. The men who endorse the policy of the administration, have no occasion to object to men who do not agree with them. Freedom of thought and opinion is one of the rights that are peculiar to American government, and no reasonable man objects to honest opposition.

The Gazette has never given editorial expression to the titles applied to the contending factions as the paper does not believe in that kind of contention. The contest at the best, will create more or less bitterness, and it should be free from personal abuse or blackguardism. If Senator Whitehead accepts the call, as he doubtless will, the Gazette will attempt to give him clean and wholesome support. When the contest closes, and the will of the convention is expressed, the nominee will receive the same loyal support.

The republicans of the state while actively engaged in promoting principles which they believe to be right, and while honestly differing on these principles can not afford to become so partisan or bitter in discussion or action, as to antagonize each other, after the question is settled by the will of the majority. The party will live long after the present governor and Senator Whitehead have passed from the stage of action. If it is to accomplish the best in the way of results it will be through harmony of action, and united purpose.

Political parties compete for ascendancy, and the contest that is usually spirited, is legitimate, but a family quarrel is always unseemly, and should only be tolerated as a last resort. The present strife in the ranks of the republican party, could not be avoided, but when it is settled by the convention, the defeated faction should submit gracefully, and decide in advance to be loyal to party welfare.

THE AGE LIMIT

The cratic expression of opinion by a speaker at the convention of the American Federation, in Chicago the other day, when he said, in substance that men who had passed the age of 45 should be killed off is not very significant and does not bear much weight. He was doubtless unduly exercised over the fact that young men are in active demand, in the industrial world, while middle aged, and men who have passed their prime find it more difficult to find employment.

There are no theories and but little sentiment among large corporations about the employment of labor. Sharp competition and the active age in which we live, demand the best in muscle as well as mind, and while the latter may be active up to the limit of old age, the former begins to weaken soon after middle life is passed. There are, of course, exceptions, but rules are not made for exceptions. Sight begins to weaken, hearing is not as acute, the step not quite so firm, powers of endurance are reduced and the man begins to reluctantly admit the fact, that he isn't quite the man he was ten years before.

If he is in the employ of an individual or small corporation, he is frequently retained, until failing health compels him to give up active life, and with many large corporations, long, continual and faithful service, retire him late in life on a pension. But if he has the misfortune, as too many men have, of being out of employment, when he has passed the limit of life, he is in a bad way. He is a man who has passed the limit of life, and he is a man who is a burden on the community.

When a man reaches the age of 45 or 50, he has had the benefit of 25 or 30 years of experience, with all the opportunities that life possesses. If he is ever going to have a business or any money ahead, he will be in possession as a rule before he reaches middle life. The trouble with too many men is, that they live year after year, from hand to mouth, never realizing until they come up sharp against it, that a time is coming, when earning capacity will be weakened. This is just as true of the business man, as of the working man. There are thousands of men in business past middle life, making a comfortable living, who wouldn't be able to earn the dollars a week, if thrown out and obliged to seek employment.

These are cold facts, and not theories. Young men in active life, can afford to look ahead occasionally and cultivate as a part of their daily creed the habit of laying by a little every week, to provide for the same contingencies that now confront their brothers a little farther advanced in the struggle.

The American Federation, as well as all other organizations, will be at its best, when it teaches thrift and economy, as vital to permanent success.

CHANCES FOR SUCCESS

The democrats of Wisconsin are not fools even if some of them do still vote for Andrew Jackson. They are always ready and willing to support a man who is a republican in the field against the republican ranks, hoping that out of it may come a democratic victory of more or less magnitude. Just now they imagine that if they can induce Governor La Follette to believe that they are dead stuck on him he will, in the event of his failure to receive a re-nomination, run as an independent, relying upon the support of the democrats for his election. Once get him in the field against the republican convention and instantaneously the leaders of democracy will get out a search warrant for the most respectable democrat in the state to lead their ticket, knowing every last mother's son of their partisans will vote for him. In a "three-cornered" fight is the only chance for a democratic successor to Governor La Follette and for this chance the democrats are now playing.—Beloit Free Press.

BE FAIR AT WHATEVER COST

Let us have a fair, open contest for delegates to the coming republican state convention. Let it be a contest between republicans, and let all republicans make up their minds to abide by the result of the convention. Let the contest not be based upon trivial matters, but let it rather be a contest of principles.

Under these conditions the party members need have no fear of the results. The majority will rule and we will continue to be in the future what we have been in the past—the best and greatest political party ever in existence.—Gillett Times.

An Egyptian mummy that had reposed for a number of years in a basement of a university building in Chicago, took fire the other day and went up in smoke. The supposition is that it was disturbed by Rev. Parkhurst's new theory about immortality, and decided that it did not belong to the elect.

The loss of the Marzluft Company is appreciated by the people of Janesville. It comes at a season of the year when the company was unusually busy, and one hundred hands are thrown out of employment. The company will doubtless make arrangements to resume business at the earliest possible moment. They are entitled to every encouragement.

The appointment of Edward M. Crane, to succeed Capt. Ole Olson as postmaster at Oshkosh is a compliment to the young men of the state that should be appreciated. Mr. Crane is a prominent business man of Oshkosh and his appointment gives universal satisfaction.

The loss of the car barn by the Street Railway Company is a misfortune. There is no money in the business at its best and a fire loss comes as an additional burden.

Oshkosh is losing quite a number of railroad families, caused by the new division headquarters at Fond du Lac, but the saw dust city is too busy to spend any time in kicking.

PRESS COMMENT

Eau Claire Telegram: The Winona Morning Independent, one of the best and most popular small city newspapers in this part of the country, has been suspended by the owner, J. R. Watkins. The reason he gives is that he wishes to devote all of his time to his large patent medicine business. He is said to be very wealthy and some say he is a millionaire. This suspension leaves Winona without a morning newspaper. It is surprising that a man with so much money and a big supply of patent-medicine constantly on hand should quit the newspaper business.

JOINT CONFERENCE DISAGREES

Miners and Operators Are Far Apart on Scale Propositions.

Indianapolis, Ind., Feb. 5.—The mine operators and mine workers in secret session of the joint scale committee yesterday disagreed upon every one of the seven propositions submitted by the miners, and the matter was referred for discussion to the open joint conference held in the afternoon. There the operators voted unanimously against the scale proposition offered by the miners, and the matter was referred back to the joint committee. It is plain the operators will not grant the scale asked by the miners. The failure to agree will lead to the reference of the disputed questions to a sub-scale committee of operators and miners and a prolongation of the conference.

Police Chiefs to Fight Anarchy.

Cincinnati, Feb. 5.—The International Police Journal in its next number will issue an official call for an international convention of chiefs of police at Louisville May 7, lasting four days. Over 200 messages have been forwarded by the Department of State for delivery by United States consuls to the chiefs of police in the leading cities of the world, inviting them to attend the convention, which is expected to take decisive action against anarchy.

A LITTLE LADDIE and HIS FARM

By LUCY D. BAILY.

There once was a dear little laddie whom you never have heard of before: A very contented wee laddie, whose farm was the sitting room floor. His fences of wood were embellished with primitive literature. And he moved them with every new notion a dozen times daily, I'm sure. He drove his white hickory nut sheep to and fro from meadow to field. And they throw, though the herbage they found there was such as a carpet can yield.

The farm operations were managed by hickory nut soldiers of brown. And good Zollicoffer commanded the forces that marched up and down. —Youth's Companion.

The Strange Purchase of the Thanksgiving Club.

It was Faith Harper who thought of it—the Thanksgiving club, I mean. Faith always thought of such beautiful things. But, of course, in this case she was influenced by her experience with the elephant. It was when she was a "wee bit lassie" that she strayed away from her home one fair spring day and wandered in through the open flap of the great circus tent pitched on the village square. The afternoon performance was over, and the tent was deserted save for the keeper and attendants.

As the little one looked about her in utter bewilderment a sick tigress, doubly ferocious with pain, suddenly shattered the confining bars of her cage and sprang across the open space, intent upon her prey.

Keepers and attendants were panic stricken, but Princess, the monster elephant, with maternal gentleness wound her huge trunk about the child and, lifting her high in the air, held her out of the reach of danger until the enraged tigress was again in confinement.

When she was old enough to realize fully the awful danger from which she had escaped and to understand the almost incredible means by which her escape was effected, Faith pledged herself to use all her influence to promote the welfare and happiness of animals, both great and small, and the Thanksgiving club was the outgrowth of the pledge.

So you see it was not an experiment, as so many clubs are. It had a reason for existing, it was carefully organized, and it had come to stay. Its name was suggested by Faith in token of her gratitude for her deliverance.

The twelve girls who comprised its members were enthusiastic students of natural history. So far as their environment permitted, their knowledge was not only theoretical, but experimental. They knew the habits and habits of every woodland creature for many miles around, and never an unfamiliar bird call fell upon their ears.

But it was, after all, in the elephant that their interest was chiefly centered, and out of this intense interest grew their strange purchase. Of course the visit of Faith's missionary uncle had something to do with it. It was wonderfully exciting to the little group, whose acquaintance with the great creatures was limited to the circus and the zoo, to listen to the fascinating stories of his everyday home life in the jungles of India, where he is appreciated for his patience and obedience, as well as for his marvelous strength, and where he is noted for his high degree of intelligence.

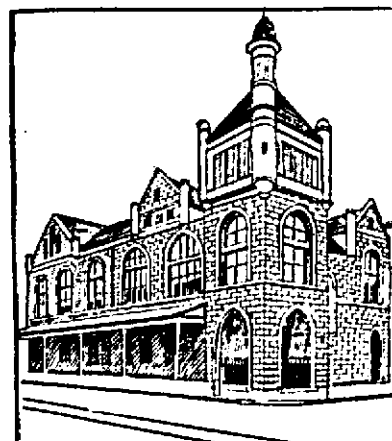

As Faith sat in the midst of the little group, while one delightful tale followed another, the queer plan developed in her busy little brain—the Thanksgiving club would buy an elephant. Of course they could not bring it to Circleville. That was no part of her plan. But in the mission compound in faraway India, where long and dangerous journeys were so often undertaken and heavy burdens were constantly to be borne, the sagacious creature would be of untold value.

The club received Faith's proposal with enthusiastic approval. It was the custom of her father at each Thanksgiving season to set aside a goodly sum of money to be expended in the name of the club in recognition of her escape from the tigress. Her unique plan with its possibilities so delighted him that the amount already placed to their credit was doubled. But this was not all. The story of how those twelve girls planned and worked and sacrificed would fill a book. Doubly inspired by missionary interest and club enthusiasm, they bent all their fresh young energies toward accumulating the amount necessary to accomplish their object. And so it came about that when the missionary uncle sailed away to the scene of his labors he carried with him the price of a missionary elephant whose name was to be Princess.

Masonry was introduced into the Hawaiian Islands as early as 1848 by the French, but it lacked stability and soon became extinct, says The Masonic Standard. In 1852 Hawaiian lodge was chartered by the grand lodge of California, since which time Masonry has grown and flourished, there being now several lodges, a Royal Arch chapter, commandery of Knights Templars, three bodies of the Scottish Rite, an Eastern Star chapter and a temple of the Mystic Shrine. The handsome temple erected by the Masonic bodies is substantial proof of the financial prosperity of the fraternity in the islands.

MASONIC TEMPLE, HONOLULU.

The building is a substantial one, well appointed, with proper rooms and appliances for Masonic work, and architecturally would be an ornament to many an older and richer city.

UNITED WORKMEN

Progress of the Order in Ohio Jurisdiction—Lodge Notes.

Extension work in Ohio under the direction of Deputy Supreme Master Workman D. C. Herrin is still progressing rapidly. During the year ending June 1, 1,437 members were added to that jurisdiction. From June 1 to October 1 a further gain of 491 was made. The methods of work employed by the supreme lodge in Ohio is a deputy system, which has proved very effective.

Smoke talks are popular with the lodges of the Massachusetts Jurisdiction. They are productive of much good.

The new jurisdiction of Maine is making a strong and successful movement to increase its membership.

The grand lodge is offering inducements enough in the way of premiums and prizes and commissions to stimulate active work among the brethren. Philadelphia lodges are working as never before for the extension of the order.

The order since institution has paid to beneficiaries $67,102.755.

The emergency fund now amounts to $1,553,514.

Two new councils are soon to be instituted in St. Louis.

Deputy Supreme Regent Edward E. Ford has put between 1,200 and 1,500 candidates in the Royal Arcanum, a record unequalled in the fraternity.

The membership of the order in New York is 58,537 in 287 councils.

A TEST EXPERIMENT.

Peculiar Power Possessed by a New Medicine.

Of new discoveries there is no end but one of the most recent, most remarkable and one which will prove invaluable to thousands of people, is a discovery which is believed will take the place of all other remedies for the cure of those common and obstinate diseases, dyspepsia and stomach troubles. The discovery is not a very loudly advertised, secret patent medicine, but is a scientific combination of wholesome, perfectly harmless vegetable essences, fruit salts, pure pepsin and bismuth.

These remedies are combined in lozenge form, pleasant to take, and will preserve their good qualities indefinitely, whereas all liquid medicines rapidly lose whatever good qualities they may have had as soon as uncorked and exposed to the air.

This preparation is called Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets and is claimed that one of these tablets will digest from 300 to 3,000 times its own weight of meat, eggs and other wholesome food. And this claim has been proven by actual experiments in the following manner: A hard boiled egg cut into small pieces was placed in a bottle containing warm water heated to ninety-eight degrees (or blood heat), one of these tablets was then placed in the bottle and the proper temperature maintained for three hours and a half, at the end of which time the egg was completely digested as it would have been in a healthy stomach. This experiment was undertaken to demonstrate that what it would do in the stomach, hence its unquestionable value in the cure of dyspepsia and weak digestion. Very few people are free from some form of indigestion but scarcely two will have the same from distress after eating, bloating from gas in the stomach and bowels, others have acid dyspepsia, heartburn, sleeplessness, pains in chest and under shoulder blades, extreme nervousness as in nervous dyspepsia, but they all have same cause, failure to properly digest what is eaten. The stomach must have rest and assistance, and Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets give it both, by digesting the food for it and in a short time it is restored to its normal action and vigor. At same time the Tablets are as harmless as a child can take them with benefit. This new preparation has already made many astonishing cures, as for instance the following:

After using only one package of Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets I have received such great and unexpected benefit that I wish to express my sincere gratitude. In fact it has been six months since I took the package and I have not had one particle of distress or difficulty since. And all this in the face of the fact that the best doctors I consulted told me my case was Chronic Dyspepsia and absolutely incurable as I had suffered twenty-five years. I distributed half a dozen packages among my friends here who are very anxious to try this remedy.

TYPE OF THE BOWERY

CHUCK CONNORS, QUAIN CHARACT-
TER OF NEW YORK'S SLUMS.Social Leader in Chinese District of the Great City—His Annual Ball,
Queer Product of the Metropolis,
Meeting With Hall Calne.

The annual ball of the Chuck Connors association has come and gone, and nothing is left of it but a memory. And such a memory! The elite of society of New York's Chinatown and adjacent districts in the Bowery are of one opinion as to the success of Mr. Connors' latest contribution to the gaiety of life.

For several weeks prior to the great event huge posters decorated the walls of Chinese restaurants and Bowery saloons announcing the date of the event and bearing the admonition, "Bring your wads with you." And bring them they did, and spend them they did.

But all this was to be expected and was in the proper spirit, for when the association which takes its name from the redoubtable Chuck gives a ball the bars are let down, and everything goes, and goes to the limit, which is taken off. So much for Chuck Connors' ball.

Chuck Connors, by the way, is not a fictitious character, as some may suppose, but a living, breathing entity, very much in evidence in the everyday life of the peculiar district of New York in which is to be found the flotsam and jetsam of all the world, including China.

In a rather dingy Chinatown saloon Chuck Connors holds court. It is only a few doors away from the famous Bowery, in Pell street, the principal street of Chinatown. And here Chuck rules, for he is the unquestioned boss of his district.

Chuck's public career began as a newsboy and bootblack. He used to ply his trade at the New York end of the Brooklyn bridge and along Park row. As he accumulated years and muscle he became a prizefighter and later developed into an actor. These employments of callow days have now been relegated to the past, and it is as a saloon keeper and leader of the people that he is seen at his best.

Among newspaper men Chuck Connors is a great favorite, and his queer conceits and original humor have fur-ished material for many a story in Gotham's daily press. His intimate knowledge of the district in which he lives makes him an invaluable guide for slumming parties, and many such has Chuck conducted through the dark and crooked streets tenanted by every form of poverty and vice which compose his bailiwick.

Chuck's local fame was well established when as the original of E. W. Townsend's "Chinaman Fadden" he achieved almost national notoriety. He was also the hero of a series of Chinatown sketches written by William Norr for a New York paper. As an actor he succeeded the late Steve Brodie of bridge jumping fame in the "On the Bowery" company, and it is said professional jealousy was responsible for the coolness that later sprang up between them.

Friends of Mr. Connors say that he cherishes as his most precious possession a personal letter from Hall Calne, the author of "The Chinaman." How Chuck came to call Hall Calne "Me fren, de swell writer," came about in this manner: When Mr. Calne visited this country a year or so ago, he expressed a desire to see life as it existed on the Bowery. The name of the man suggested as best qualified to show him around was naturally that of Chuck Connors.

The high position in the world of letters held by the author was unknown to Chuck, but had he known he would not have treated him with more consideration than any one of the hundreds of sightseers to whom each year he shows the depths of degradation of New York's most flagrant menace—Chinatown.

What interested Chuck most was that Hall Calne handed him a five dollar bill and promised a similar donation, when their trip should be over and the light of a new day should send Calne to his hotel and Chuck to his room $10 richer for an experience that to him was of nightly occurrence.

"Chuck Connors' personality haunted me," said the author a few days later, "and again I returned to Chinatown to renew an acquaintance with one of the most original characters it has ever been my fortune to meet. We have nothing in England, not even the costermonger, to equal the type. Chuck Connors will be one of my most pleasant recollections of America."

That is how Chuck Connors came to get a personal letter from the great Hall Calne.

A Strong Woman

town City, Iowa, Aug. 15, 1900
My wife was sick for three years. We tried everything without relief and spent much money. My wife tried Wine of Cardui and four bottles cured her. She took two more bottles, knowing she would have to work hard during the hay harvest, she attended to all her household duties and loaded and unloaded all the hay. This medicine gave her strength. Formerly she was weak and tired and could hardly get about, but since she has been taking Wine of Cardui she feels better and stronger than when 20 years of age. JOSEPH A. EISENHAFER.

Mrs. Eisenhafer had tried everything during her three years sickness and had spent considerable money. She was weak and could hardly get about for three years before she took

WINE OF CARDUI

Now, after taking the Wine of Cardui, she can work with her husband in the hay field. That is hard work, but it is not as injurious to a woman's health as labor in stores, factories and offices where thousands of girls are closely confined year after year. With the aid of Wine of Cardui a woman can do any reasonable work and enjoy good health. The health that Wine of Cardui brings makes a woman vigorous in body and mind. Freed from those terrible devastating pains a woman grows well and strong naturally. Wine of Cardui regulates the disordered menstruation and cures leucorrhoea, falling of the womb and periodical pains in the head and back caused by standing or sitting a long time in the same position. Theodor's Black-Draught puts the bowels, stomach, liver, kidneys and blood in proper shape. Greatly increased strength and endurance is the natural result. Most cases are cured quickly. All druggists sell $1.00 bottles of Wine of Cardui and 25 cent packages of Theodor's Black-Draught.

S'SH SLEEP
AT LAST
LAXAKOLA
DOES IT

NO ONE BUT A MOTHER can appreciate the benefit sleep gives to an ailing, teething, feverish, colicky, fretful infant. Almost distracted by its constant crying, and worn out with weary, anxious care and watching, she tries everything possible to obtain even relief for the little sufferer.

With what comfort and delight she sees her little one drop off into a deep peaceful health-giving slumber, after its little clogged bowels are cleared of their poisonous burden by a single dose of Laxakola, the great tonic laxative and mother's remedy.

Laxakola is a pure, gentle and painless liquid laxative, and contains valuable tonic properties which not only act upon the bowels, but tone up the entire system and purify the blood. A few drops can be given with safety to very young babies, which will often relieve colic by expelling the wind and gas that cause it. Great relief is experienced when administered to young children suffering from diarrhoea, accompanied with white or green evacuations, as it neutralizes the acidity of the bowels and carries out the cause of the fermentation. LAXAKOLA will aid digestion, relieve restlessness, assist nature, and induce sleep. For constipation, simple fevers, coated tongue, or any infantile troubles arising from a disordered condition of the stomach it is invaluable.

Laxakola, the great tonic laxative, is not only the most efficient of family remedies, but the most economical, because it combines two medicines, viz: laxative and tonic, and at one price. No other remedy gives so much for the money. At druggists, 25c and 50c or send for free sample to THE LAXAKOLA CO., 10 Nassau Street, N. Y., or 30 Dearborn Street, Chicago.

F. F. LEWIS INVENTS
KNITTING MACHINE

It Has 718 Needles and Carries 358 Threads—The Result of Many Years' Study.

The Lewis Knitting Co. of this city are using a knitting machine in their factory which is the only one of its kind in the world. It is also the only machine which can fulfill the requirements for which the machine was constructed.

It is the result of many years of toil and study on the part of Mr. F. F. Lewis, secretary and treasurer of the company and the advantages that accrue to the manufacturer for its use are considerable. The machine is a development of the old machine which originated in Germany and carried a single needle and bound all the stitches with a single thread.

This permitted the using of but a fine thread and the warp made was possessed of but little elasticity but was rigid like cloth. For ten years it has been the object of Mr. Lewis to construct a machine that would remedy the defects of the one in use and knit a material that would have advantages which could not be obtained with the goods made by the old machine.

He carefully studied the old machine and made experiments and improvements until he now has a machine that accomplishes all the desired results. The new machine has 718 needles and carries 358 threads and each stitch is bound by a separate needle. The material produced is possessed of great elasticity and when made into a garment accommodates itself to the shape of the body and is yet firm enough to give strength and durability.

It is also possible to make goods of various patterns by the use of the different colored threads. The patterns can be varied by the different arrangement of the threads. Aside from these advantages the machine has a greatly increased capacity and two different patterns can be manufactured at the same time, on the same machine.

There are three of these machines in use at the factory now and another is in course of construction which will have still greater capacity, having 800 needles and carrying 400 threads.

The product of the factory is mostly sold in the eastern market being calculated for high class trade. The representative of the firm showed samples of garments made of the product of the new machines for the first time last season. The trade was universally surprised and delighted at the result obtained.

OUTLOOK FOR THE
MARZLUFF FACTORY

It is Likely That the Firm Will Continue to Do Business in This City.

The ruins at the Marzluff factory present quite a sight with their heavy coating of ice, from the water poured on them by the department. Fire is still smoldering in the basement under the mass of machinery and wood work piled in there. A lead of hose is kept at the building all the time and a fireman is on duty a considerable portion of the time to see that the fire does not get a fresh start.

Everything except the safe and some of the books and chairs are still in the ruins. There are a great number of shoes on the frames that are coated with ice, but look as if they were not burned, so that the insurance companies might realize some thing from the salvage.

The machinery, however is badly burned and wrecked and will no doubt be a total loss. The matter of adjusting the loss will be taken up by the companies interested at once and will no doubt be settled in a short time. There should be a number of sites available in this city where machinery could be installed and the work of filling spring orders taken up.

Mr. Marzluff stated that they could not say what they would do until the matter of insurance was settled. It is to be hoped that Mr. Marzluff will make arrangements to continue his business in this city.

It is understood that a committee has already been appointed in Beloit to visit Mr. Marzluff and see what inducements he wants to locate in their city.

Had Curious Experience.

Louis D. Ream, of Peru, Ind., had a curious experience when he arrived in this city yesterday morning. He came in on the early train and went to the Grand hotel. After eating his breakfast he asked Clerk Young if he could tell him where Marzluff's shoe factory was. Young told him no he could not. This seemed curious to Ream, so he said, well he must have salesrooms or offices or something here. I came here to travel for him. Mr. Young told him that Marzluff did have a factory here the night before but that it had been destroyed by fire during the night, which explained the reason why he could not tell where the factory was. Mr. Ream came here with the expectation of going out on the road for Mr. Marzluff and was much disappointed when he learned what had happened to the factory.

Six-Hand Euchre Club.

Mrs. Elizabeth Phelps entertained the ladies six hand euchre club at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. S. McGinn on Sinclair street last evening. The husbands and gentlemen friends were invited at this time and an elegant dinner was served at 6:30 o'clock. The dining room was handsomely decorated with cut flowers and plants. After the supper the balance of the evening was spent around the card tables. It was an enjoyable affair about twenty-five guests being present.

A VERY BRILLIANT
SOCIAL FUNCTION

Grand Complimentary Banquet and Dancing Party by the Knights of Columbus.

The Assembly hall was the scene of an extremely brilliant social function last evening. The affair was a grand complimentary banquet and dancing party given by the Knights of Columbus in honor of their ladies.

The hall was very tastefully decorated for the occasion, the prominent colors being red and green. The cards announced the banquet to begin at 6:30 o'clock but it was seven before the guests were seated at the tables. The menu was lavish and elaborate and while the guests were eating Smith's orchestra of seven pieces furnished some excellent music. Among the number present were many from outside councils; Harvard, Beloit, Rockford and Madison.

After the banquet a very interesting program of toasts was enjoyed. J. Thomas Hogan presided as toastmaster and following an invocation by the Rev. Dean E. M. McGlinchy he called on the following speakers:

Smallpox Remedy.

Mr. H. J. Cowles of River View Park, sends in the following clipping from the Camden, N. J. Journal. The remedy is old and is said to be very effective.

In these days when smallpox is asserting itself so persistently, in many parts of the country, the following statement which is credited to Edward Hines, is worth considering: "I am willing to risk my reputation as a public man, if the worst case of smallpox cannot be cured in three days, simply by cream of tartar."

"This is a sure and never failing remedy: One ounce of cream of tartar dissolved in boiling water, a pint to be drunk when cold, at short intervals. It can be taken at any time and is a preventative as well as a curative. It has been known to cure thousands of cases without fail. I have myself restored hundreds by this means. It never leaves a mark, never causes blindness, and always prevents tedious lingerings."

LATE TELEGRAPHIC NEWS

BRITAIN REJECTS HOLLAND'S OFFER

Negotiations for Peace Must Come from Leaders of the Boers in the Field.

INTERVENTION IS REJECTED.

Delegates from South Africa Will Hold a Conference with Kruger at The Hague—Efforts to End the War Are Likely to Be Continued.

London, Feb. 5.—The British government has replied to Dr. Kruger, the Dutch premier, that if the Boers in the field desire to negotiate for peace negotiations can be entered into, but only in South Africa. The British government adheres to its intention not to accept the intervention of any foreign power.

Will Confer with Kruger. The Hague, Feb. 5.—Mr. Fischer, Dr. Lyds, and the other Boer delegates, will go to Utrecht to-day to attend a conference at the residence of Mr. Kruger.

It is understood their purpose is to discuss whether or not they shall apply direct to Great Britain for safe conducts to South Africa.

May Win by Direct Methods. London, Feb. 5.—The Hague correspondent of the Daily News says it is believed that if the delegates address London direct there is some chance of their obtaining a safe conduct to South Africa.

Great significance is attached to Great Britain's recognition of the Messrs. Kruger and Schalkburgers, respectively, President of the Orange Free State and Acting President of the Transvaal.

Another Hague correspondent quotes the Boer delegates as saying that Great Britain's reply is in nowise hostile; on the contrary, it is friendly, showing that she is not animated by unjust motives. Moreover, the reply leaves a way open to reaching an understanding if unsurmountable conditions are not insisted upon.

It is said that the retirement of Lord Salisbury from office will be coincident with the end of the South African war, but it is his intention to retain his post until peace is accomplished.

In his weekly report to the war office Lord Kitchener states that in the week ended Feb. 1 twenty-nine Boers were killed, six wounded and 142 taken prisoners, while forty-eight surrendered.

JUDGES' SALARIES ARE INCREASED

Bill Passed by Senate Yesterday, All Amendments Offered Being Rejected.

BAILEY'S MAIDEN SPEECH.

Texas Statesman Opposes the Increase—Gov. Taft Says the Vast Majority of Filipinos Desire Peace—Debate on Oleomargarine Bill in House.

Washington, Feb. 5.—After a brief discussion yesterday the Senate passed the bill providing for a 25 per cent increase in the salaries of United States judges. All amendments were voted down, including one to increase the salaries of cabinet officers from $8,000 to $12,500 a year.

Mr. Bailey (Tex.) delivered his first speech in the Senate in opposition to the pending bill. He assumed, he said, that the action of the Senate in rejecting amendments to increase the salaries of Senators and Representatives and Cabinet officers was an expression of the deliberate opinion of the Senate. Personally Mr. Bailey believed that the present salaries of Senators and Representatives were sufficient. Salaries ought to be only such as will maintain the recipient in decency and in comfort—nothing more.

The bill then passed—29 to 21. By the terms of the measure the following salaries are to be paid United States judges: Chief Justice, Supreme Court of the United States, $13,000; each Associate Justice, $12,500; Circuit Court Judges, $7,500; District Judges, $6,250; Chief Justice, Court of Claims, $6,125; each Associate Justice, $5,625; Chief Justice, Court of Appeals, District of Columbia, $8,000; each Associate Justice, $7,500; Chief Justice, Supreme Court, District of Columbia, $6,750; each Associate Justice, $6,250.

During the remainder of the day's session the urgent deficiency appropriation bill was under consideration. Mr. Hunsbrough made a spirited defense of Judge Arthur H. Noyes of the District Court of Alaska and Alexander McKenzie, upon whom an attack was made in the Senate yesterday. This precipitated a long discussion of the Noyes case, legal and technical rather than personal.

John F. Dryden was inducted into office as the successor of the late Senator William J. Sewell of New Jersey.

SAYS FILIPINOS WANT PEACE. Gov. Taft Continues Testimony Before the Senate Committee.

Washington, Feb. 5.—The vast majority of the Filipino people desire peace and the opportunity it will bring them to resume agricultural and industrial pursuits, according to Gov. Taft in his evidence before the senate committee on the Philippines yesterday.

He had been told by American officers of many instances of mutilation of the corpses of soldiers. This being true, it was not surprising that there had been some retaliation on the part of small bands of American soldiers. There probably were cases of unnecessary killing, of whipping, and of what is called the "water cure"—pouring water down the throats of men until they would swell up and, becoming frightened, would tell what they might know, as, for instance, where guns could be secured.

As a rule, the witness said, American prisoners were treated well by the Filipinos. This, so far as he knew, was uniformly true of the Filipino officers high in command. There were some cases to the contrary on the part of the subordinate Filipino officers.

Sensor Culberson asked if he still entertained the same opinions previously expressed as to the military policy in the Philippines, and Gov. Taft replied:

"The war has been all over these islands, and that which remains is a crime against civilization. It is also a crime against the Filipino people to keep up a state of war under the circumstances. They have worn out the right to any treatment but that which is severe and within the laws of war."

This statement led Senator Patterson to ask whether the witness did not consider that even a small number of people who were waging a war for independence do not deserve consideration at the hands of the American army. In response Gov. Taft said that the great majority of the people of the islands desire peace, and that the insurgents by their acts were preventing the mass of the people from settling down and earning a quiet living. Instead of being allowed to do this they were kept under a system of terrorism, which should be stopped.

OPPOSE OLEOMARGARINE BILL. Grosvenor of Ohio Principal Speaker Against the Measure.

Washington, Feb. 5.—Debate on the oleomargarine bill continued yesterday in the House, and the prospects are that a vote will not be reached earlier than Thursday.

Mr. Grosvenor (Ohio), in a vigorous speech against the measure, warned the friends of the bill that the use of a wholesome food product could not be prevented by legislation, and declared that the advertisement given to oleomargarine by this agitation would defeat the ends aimed at by the "friends of the cow."

Mr. Davidson (Wis.) urged that the bill was designed only to protect the dairy interests from competition with something which passed as butter and which was not butter.

Mr. Hepburn (Ia.), in defending the bill, claimed that its passage would cheapen the price of oleomargarine for those who desired to use it, first, by reducing the tax one and three-fourths cents, and, second, by taking it out of the market as a competitor of butter.

Other speakers were Messrs. Tompkins (N. Y.), Robb (Mo.), Knapp (N. Y.), Bates (Pa.), and Driscoll (N. Y.), in favor, and Messrs. Cowherd (Mo.), Lanham (Tex.), and Kleberg (Tex.), against the bill.

Shaw's First Official Expression. Washington, Feb. 5.—Secretary Shaw's first communication on financial legislation is contained in a letter to Representative Sizer of New York, concerning the latter's bill to deposit government funds at interest in national banks throughout the country. The letter says:

"I think some provision for the deposit of surplus funds belonging to the United States government with national banks upon security other than government bonds would be wise, though I doubt the limitations as to the amount of capital and surplus contained in the bill. I also question the wisdom of mandatory provisions of law. On the contrary, I think there should generally be a fair latitude of discretion. Authority to act in a given line is generally sufficient."

More Power for Commission. Washington, Feb. 5.—Senator Elkins, chairman of the interstate commerce committee, has introduced a bill strengthening the powers of the interstate commerce commission and permitting the railroads to make pools. This bill gives the commission power to determine whether or not existing rates are unjustly discriminative or unreasonable, and to fix what it considers a just and reasonable rate.

Brazil Merchants Stand Afloat. Brazil, Ind., Feb. 5.—The Merchants' Association met here and adopted resolutions declaring that in no way would they take action in favor of or against the striking street car men. Berlin, Feb. 4.—A rumor is current in political quarters that Kaiser Wilhelm has recommended the withdrawal of the tariff bill in the face of objection by Chancellor von Buelow and that a conflict between the emperor and chancellor is imminent. THE AUTHOR OF "NEHE."

Mrs. Anna P. Siviter and Her New Book.

Although she has been a contributor to church publications for many years past and won no little literary distinction by her work, Mrs. Anna Pierpont Siviter has only lately published her first book. It is entitled "Nehe" and is a historically religious novel founded on events taking place in the time of Artaxerxes.

Writers of fiction usually construct their stories with a view of exploiting some particular theory or fact or setting forth some great moral principle, but the author of "Nehe" has no such ambitious designs. Her purpose is unique for its simplicity. She declares her aim to be that its readers may find the same pleasure that she has found in living over the scenes and events which took place in Persia and Judaea 2,400 years ago.

Mrs. Siviter finds her hero in the book of Nehemiah, taking for her principal character the Hebrew captive who was captained to the king and afterward, by royal permission, the builder of the walls of Jerusalem. The meager outlines of the Bible account, by the power of her genius and the graces and charm of her imagination, are woven into a story of thrilling interest.

Mrs. Siviter is a resident of Pittsburgh and widely known and esteemed in a social way. She is the daughter of the late Governor Francis H. Pierpont of Virginia, and her literary genius is recognized in poetry as well as prose.

Drinking Barber's Crushing Answer.
When it was too late the barber's customer discovered that the operator he had selected to manipulate the razor had been indulging in strong drink. But he sank back in his chair, trusting to luck for a successful shave. The inevitable happened, however, when the nerve-racked barber jabbed a piece of cuticle from the victim's chin. "Now, you see, sir, what hard drinking will do," wailed the damaged person. "Yes, it does make the skin tender," said the man of shears and blade.—New York Times.

Mark Twain's Drawl.

Best Specimens of the Feathered
Class Are On Exhibition at the Poultry Show.

Delavan, Wis., Feb. 5.—The South-eastern Wisconsin Poultry association opened its fourth annual exhibition here yesterday, to continue five days, with 1,200 entries and flattering prospects for a successful exhibition. Bird fanciers from all over the state and from points in Illinois have fowls on exhibition at this show and prize-winners from the Chicago, Milwaukee and Stoughton poultry shows will also try for additional honors.

As the success of a poultry show depends in no small measure on the judging of the exhibits, the association has been fortunate in securing for this show F. H. Shellabarger of West Union, Ia. He is considered one of the best poultry judges in the United States.

The fanciers who have the most numerous list of entries to date are: J. R. Brabozon, Jr., & Co., J. R. Brabozon, Sr., and E. W. Brunk of Delavan. A. A. Fenn & Co., of Burlington have a large exhibit of bantams in variety. Nearly every variety of fowl that crows, cackles, quacks or gobbles has a representation here. Pugnacious games, peaceable Rocks, Wyandottes, Cochins and Brahmas; suppling, fidgety bantams, and the star layers, the Leghorns, with Minorcas, Langshans and Spanish varieties vociferously announce their respective claims to merit.

John Keefe of Delavan has several entries of Chinese pheasants. Gene B. Hollister, E. L. Durke and C. W. Irish of Delavan have each several batches of Belgian hares in competition. Pet stock is represented by Angora goats, cats, dogs, canaries, crows and parrots.
